ALTIUS PREPARED FOR 2000

With half a million dollars in its bank account from reputable industry investors (eg. Exploration Capital Partners Limited Partnership) and an intense technical program underway, Altius Minerals Resources is well positioned for the 2000 and 2001 exploration seasons. The two year old junior exploration company has been making steady progress since its inception, gradually adding more projects and properties to its portfolio and impressing all the right people along the way. In an innovative move, it recently started sharing exploration information from an area fragmented into smaller properties with Celtic Mineral Resources. Without the information sharing, it was impossible to gather the overall picture of the area's mineral potential. The only thing missing is a commercially viable deposit and widespread industry opinion is that it will only be a matter of time before this diligent company and its investors strike it rich.
